Burundians are rich. According to him, the reality he had just seen on the ground could help the recovery of certain minds and the change of mentalities among certain Burundians who believed themselves to be poor, while their poverty is only to be found in their consciences.

As such, the Head of State finds that there is often abuse of language, when people speak of "Ntahonikora" in Kirundi as one who is vulnerable, unable to do anything. According to him, everyone is capable of self-development and nothing is impossible for anyone who wants to.

His Excellency closed by urging the Burundians to wake up and especially to take advantage of this new found peace to initiate development projects, in order to have a prosperous Burundi.

The First Lady invites all Burundians and partners in the country to work more for early childhood development

Her Excellency Angeline Ndayishimiye, First Lady of the Republic of Burundi, enhanced with her presence, on February 24, 2021, at the Royal Palace Hotel, the activities of the 3-day workshop, which aims to raise awareness and mobilize leaders in grassroots social sectors on the importance of directing investments and directing resources in early childhood development, from conception to age 8.

She recalled that the development of the child from conception until the age of 8 is a crucial stage in the good growth of the child. If this period is not handled with care, there is a way that the child's future will be ruined. This is also the period when the child is at high risk of suffering from diseases linked to malnutrition.

Her Excellency Angeline Ndayishimiye returned to the efforts already made by the Government of Burundi to ensure better early childhood development, in particular the ratification by the Republic of Burundi of certain International Agreements which advocate the development of childhood. Also, the Government of Burundi has established free health care for children under five, pregnant women and women in childbirth, free basic education to name a few.

The First Lady stressed that even if Burundi has made a giant leap in improving the conditions for early childhood development, challenges still exist, including poverty in families, the lack of sufficient information on feeding children and pregnant women and early childhood rights, and parents who do not take care of their children during this period of infancy.

She urged those in charge of health care structures to reinstate sensitization sessions on various issues related to the health and nutrition of infants and pregnant women. It should be mentioned that these sessions have long been intended for mothers who come for vaccination and prenatal consultation.

Her Excellency Angeline Ndayishimiye also invited the Ministries in charge of Health, Solidarity, Education, Security, Justice and the Ministry in charge of Water as well as that of Finance, increase actions in favor of better early childhood development.

The First Lady thanked the partners of Burundi who work for early childhood development including UNICEF, WFP, WHO and the World Bank. She asked them to continue this support. Much more, she invited everyone to make their contribution to the well-being of early childhood.

Finally, it reiterated its commitment to the well-being of children, through the Organization of African First Ladies for Development (OPADAD-Burundi), given that its strategic axes include the health and development of children and young people in general.

Plenary session of senators on oral questions to the Minister of National Education and Scientific Research

The President of the Senate of Burundi, the Right Honorable Emmanuel Sinzohagera led Wednesday February 24, 2021, at the hemicycle of Gitega a plenary session of Senators on oral questions addressed to the Minister of National Education and Scientific Research, Mr. Gaspard Banyankimbona on the functioning of fundamental and post-fundamental schools and the strategies adopted to meet the challenges which haunt the Burundian education sector.

The Senate Speaker indicated that senators' questions fall under the findings of their field trips during the parliamentary recess to soak up the state of play of schools. The main oral questions of the Senators concerned in particular the strategies envisaged by the Government to rehabilitate dilapidated or destroyed school infrastructures, to make up for the insufficiency of classrooms and their equipment, observed in some schools which face the overcrowding of students.

They asked for the mechanisms put in place to make up for the shortfall in teaching staff in certain municipalities.

They deplored the insufficiency of desks noted in most schools, drinking water, electricity, libraries, computers, textbooks for teachers and undergraduate students of ECOFO. They raised questions about the functioning of vocational schools and their equipment. They also called for strategies adopted to reduce the high rate of school dropouts and unwanted pregnancies in schools.

They expressed the need for the extension of school canteens in the various provinces of the country as a solution to the cases of school dropouts linked to the poverty of many families. They conveyed the wish of the population regarding the orientation of part of the municipal budget towards education.

Regarding the inadequacy of school infrastructure and the need for their extension, rehabilitation and equipment, the Minister in charge of National Education recognized the efforts made by the population since 2005 to increase school infrastructure. He then said that 50% of existing schools were built by the population, specifying that 33% of these schools are in good condition, 44% are in poor condition while 23% require their rehabilitation.

For desk benches, the Government of Burundi has granted a fund of one billion to the Ministry of National Education but this budget will not be able to meet the expressed needs of one hundred thousand (100,000) desk benches. While the rehabilitation of infrastructure needs an estimated amount of one hundred and seventy billion (170,000,000,000 BIF), the state has already made available a fund of two hundred million (200,000,000 BIF).

Regarding the insufficiency of drinking water and electricity in many schools, Minister Banyankimbona indicated that projects are underway to improve schools' access to water and electricity so essential for the communities especially in this campaign to fight against Covid 19. He pointed out the challenge of certain schools which record unpaid debts to REGIDESO. Equipment and teaching materials will be available as and when financial resources allow. Minister Banyankimbona stressed the need for the involvement of different actors in society for the proper functioning of schools.

He thus approved the proposal of the population relating to the orientation of part of the municipal budget to education. Communal community development plans should also integrate education actions. The reduction in the school dropout rate deserves the involvement of the various education partners in raising public awareness of the education of all children or even the establishment of a law on the education of all children.

As for the mechanisms put in place to reduce the cases of pregnancies in schools, he indicated that the Menya Umenyeshe project was initiated and the strengthening of the supervision of students by aunts and uncles in order to achieve goal of zero pregnancy cases. He also indicated that the school canteens initiated in some provinces will be able to gradually expand to all provinces.

Regarding the situation of vocational schools, Minister Banyankimbona underlined the will of the Government to promote these schools but deplored the low attendance of these schools by students who show little interest in them. He also appreciated the efforts made by the populations but deplored their slackness in equipping them. Thus, he said, out of 321 trade schools built, 105 are operational but some have small numbers of students.

The Senators asked further questions and made recommendations. They recommended in particular to follow closely the solutions for the school infrastructure in poor condition and for the insufficiency of equipment and teaching materials; continue to apply preventive measures against covid 19; to increase the number of teachers to be recruited in order to make up the deficit, to sensitize the municipalities on their crucial role in supporting schools.

In his introductory remarks, Prime Minister Alain Guillaume Bunyoni said that the primary objective of this area was to make it a large shopping center where Burundian businessmen can get their supplies instead of going to abroad. But also, this zone should be an industrial space that would house activities aimed at creating employment in Burundi.

During the exchange meeting on the evolution of the project to develop the SEZ, the observation is that according to the Prime Minister, work is slowing down because of climate change and the global health crisis of the Covid -19 pandemic consequently the company PROSERV could not make the construction plan available on time.

The other observation according to the Prime Minister is the unavailability of the roadmap and that of the members of the joint monitoring commission to conduct evaluation meetings of the SEZ project. Speaking on this situation, all the Ministers and Managers concerned by this project indicated that the non-availability of the work plan and of the information on the project slowed down the progress of the development works of the area, among others the water supply, the extension of electricity as well as the improvement of the road which leads to the site.

Among the recommendations resulting from the meeting of the stakeholders for the development of the SEZ are: the expansion of the joint monitoring committee by including the Permanent Secretaries of the sectorial Ministries to accompany and support the committee which was in place; the availability of the joint monitoring commission, the reworking of the partnership agreement between the Government of Burundi and the company PROSERV for its updating in time and space; the availability of the general construction plan for the area, the design of the road map for discussions and possible alterations by the Government of Burundi; a period of one week was granted to hold a preliminary meeting of the joint supervisory committee to prepare the meeting in 15 days of the committee reinforced by the Permanent Secretaries of the sectoral ministries for support and accompaniment.

conomic Planning, the Ministry of the Environment, Agriculture and Tourism. " Livestock, the Ministry of Infrastructures, Equipment and Social Housing, the Ministry of the Interior, Community Development and Public Security, the Ministry of Hydraulics, Energy and Mines, the Ministry of Justice of Burundi.

The objective of this new procedure for collecting municipal taxes and levies is to verify the financial potential of each municipality. This will allow the Government to realize the financial capacities of the various communes, and therefore to distribute the financial support according to the communal financial capacities, indicated the Minister in charge of the Interior. Minister Gervais Ndirakobuca welcomed the positive results already recorded during the witness collection weeks organized recently in 13 municipalities in certain provinces where the new tax collectors have collected revenues far greater than those previously received during the same period. He then underlined that the perception of the test month will be made by new tax collectors recruited among the young unemployed identified recently in the hills and neighborhoods. The supervision of this perception of the witness month will be carried out by 9 teams from the Ministry in charge of the Interior which will cover 2 provinces each, specified the Permanent Secretary in charge of the Interior, Mr. Martin Ninteretse.

The Minister in charge of the Interior indicated that the desired result is that all municipal revenues return to the public treasury for the well-being of the entire population. He invited the municipal administrators to ensure the administrative management as good fathers of families in accordance with the recommendations of the responsible and hard-working Government. They must listen to the complaints of the population without distinction and find solutions. They are also called upon to ensure the good management of the municipal heritage, to make a regular and efficient follow-up of all the personnel, to ensure a good maintenance of the infrastructures such as the roads and the gutters of their respective municipalities. They were also invited to mobilize the population to carry out development work while serving as a model. They are invited to follow up with the civil status services to remedy certain irregularities that generate family conflicts.

The Minister in charge of the Interior winked at the municipal administrators for the slowness observed in following up on the correspondence that the Ministry had addressed to them since last year. He recommended that they always make sure to give quick answers to the various correspondence of the Ministry. Reports from the various areas of communal life must be transmitted in good time.

The participants asked questions, in particular those relating to the new procedure for collecting municipal taxes and levies. After hearing all the hospital mortuary agents available to them, the manager of the Natural Flower funeral director and the opinions of the various participants, certain decisions were taken.

This involves making the agents of the morgues of the three hospitals (HPRC, HMK and CHUK) available to the Commissioner of the Judicial Police for an in-depth investigation with a view to clearing the responsibilities, taking administrative sanctions against certain workers assigned to the morgues of the CHUK, HMK and HPRC pending the conclusions of the investigations, and reorganize the morgues department of public hospitals in order to allow business continuity.

It is also a question of inviting the Directors of hospitals to become more involved in the daily management of the morgues by instructing the managers of the latter to transmit a daily report on the entries and exits of bodies, to computerize the management of the services of the morgues, and invite the City of Bujumbura to set up a public morgue for the management of home deaths as well as road accidents, given that hospital morgues are in principle reserved for patients who die in hospitals.
